

Angela D'Elia Decembrini

Representing Indigenous Peoples in negotiations with all levels of government, Angela's practice focuses on advising clients on the Crown's constitutional obligations to Indigenous Peoples.

Angela also represents Indigenous clients in negotiations with the private sector to ensure that their Aboriginal title, rights and Treaty rights are respected and protected and that communities gain real benefits from any development taking place within their territories.

Prior to joining First Peoples Law, Angela worked with the Haida Nation on their Aboriginal title negotiations, and acted as both In-house Legal Counsel and General Counsel for the Nisga'a Nation.

Angela is based in Toronto and primarily works with clients in Ontario and the Maritimes on negotiation and governance files.
