

First Peoples Law

Kate Gunn

Kate works on behalf of Indigenous Peoples across Canada on issues related to Aboriginal, environmental and constitutional law. Kate is an experienced litigator who has represented clients at all levels of court, including the Supreme Court of Canada.

Kate recently completed an LL.M at the University of British Columbia. Her thesis, Voices in the Wilderness: Treaty 3 & the Dissent of the Supreme Court in St. Catherine's, focuses on the interpretation of Indigenous-Crown treaties. Her research on treaty interpretation has also been published in the UBC Law Review.

Kate is a founding member of the Justice and Corporate Accountability Project, a legal clinic based at Osgoode Hall and Thompson Rivers University which provides advocacy and support to communities affected by transnational corporate activities and resource extraction.
